We provide a useful future oriented university education by combining academic specialization with expertise in the skills that employers most value today: communication, teamwork, creativity, and problem-solving.

One of the best aspects of academic life at LCC International University is personal interaction with our faculty. LCC students receive significant individual attention and direct feedback from their professors. Instructors serve as respected role models and mentors to guide academic career preparation.

CORE CURRICULUM

The core curriculum consists of courses that all LCC students take regardless of their major. These important courses build the foundation skills and professional flexibility that employers value most.

MAJOR

Major coursework provides an advanced knowledge and expertise in a chosen field.

MINOR

Additional concentrations and course choices are available for further areas of interest and specialization, whether adding a minor or taking elective courses outside of the selected major. This will provide individualized opportunities for meeting career goals and expanding intellectual interests.

INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Our International Business Administration program provides you with a world of opportunities: skills to understand, analyze, forecast and thrive in global markets, while at the same time emphasizing local business operations and management. With this degree, you may pursue a career in various management roles and leadership, accounting and finance, business analysis and consulting, marketing and sales, and human resources.

Courses within this program include:

Business and its Environment, Management Theory and Behavior, Macro and Micro Economics, Organizational Behavior, Business Finance, Principles of Marketing, Econometrics, International Economics, Development Economics, Comparative Economics, Economics of Conflict, Behavioral Economics, Consumer Behavior, Services Marketing, Marketing Communications, New Product Development, Marketing Research, Principles of Business Communication, Organizational Communication, Negotiations, Conflict Analysis, Digital Media Photography Production, Media Culture.

“A TIME FOR SELF- EXPLORATION AND GROWTH”

LCC is a vibrant, diverse community where you can learn much about yourself, as well as about many other beautiful cultures. I chose to pursue the International Business Administration program because it offers knowledge in all aspects of business and prepares you for becoming a successful professional. One of the highlights of being a Business major is that the program pays attention to soft skills such as communication, critical thinking, integrity, and leadership. Moreover, it helps to shape those skills through practical tasks, and mentorship from professors. Being at LCC has been a time for self-exploration and growth.

CONTEMPORARY COMMUNICATION

The Contemporary Communication program equips you to creatively apply your knowledge and skills to reach different audiences through a variety of media. By analyzing and reflecting on communication practices, events, and artifacts from different theoretical and cultural perspectives, you will learn to identify and evaluate current socio-cultural trends and grow as a listener, speaker, writer, and thinker.

As a graduate in Contemporary Communication you will be prepared for employment in advertising, marketing and public relations; media, broadcasting and journalism; government and politics; education, social and human services.

Courses within this program include:

Rhetoric and Communication, Introduction to Psychology, Interpersonal Communication, Introduction to Communication Theory, Introduction to Public Relations, Group Dynamics and Leadership, Communication Systems, Visual Communication, Research Methods, Intercultural Communication, Communication for Change, Communication Ethics and Law, Web Design, Media Culture, Strategic Communication, Media Relations, Political Communication, Advocacy NGOs, Narratology and PR, Systems Analysis, Systems Design, Usability and User-Centered Design, New Product Development or Service Design Special Tools.

Andrew Jones, Ph.D.
Contemporary Communication
Assistant Professor

The single question I am most frequently asked by students who are trying to decide on a major in Communication is “but what will I be?” Unlike professional degrees, which limit you to one specific job (engineer, accountant, etc.), a degree in Communication prepares you for a profession in a future oriented marketplace. Not only will you master hard skills like public speaking, video production, and web design, but you will also gain valuable soft skills like interpersonal communication, leadership, and listening. These are the skills that employers consistently rank as the most desirable traits in recent university graduates. This program prepares you for your first job after graduation and for your life as a thoughtful member of society.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

The English Language and Literature program will prepare you for a wide range of exciting possibilities in the fields of teaching, literature, and translation. Students will gain outstanding written and oral communication skills in English relevant for social and professional careers, with technical precision and expertise in English linguistics. As a student in this program, you will explore the mediums of storytelling, such as literature, film, and TV and will learn to teach English or work as translators in international contexts.

Courses within this program include:

Literature courses: World Literature, American Literature, Ethnic Literature, British Literature, TV Drama, The Novel, 20th Century Literature, Shakespeare

Teaching courses: Language Acquisition, Curriculum Design, Teaching Practicum, Intercultural Communication, Human Development

Translation courses: Principles of Translation, Principles of Interpretation, Audiovisual Translation, Sociolinguistics, Structure of Language, Phonetics.

“A SOLID
FOR FURTHER UNDER-STANDING

WORLD”

I always found value in literary exploration and philosophy that translated to larger pictures in life. While it is interesting to read and to think by yourself, I feel there is a lot of value in sharing those thoughts and having quality conversations with fellow students and professors. Taking some classes in philosophy as an English major was probably one of the best choices that I made here; it was very rewarding. Being at LCC and being able to connect with the people who come from completely different backgrounds that I have not had a chance to experience or perhaps never will, made my time at LCC an unforgettable experience of growth for me. I am grateful, and I am confident going into the field of international relations for my further understanding of the world and continuing to build on the foundation of knowledge that I received from LCC.

Some people study psychology so they can help others. Some study it so they can help themselves. Both are great goals and we help you in your journey towards these goals. But we also challenge you to think about how physical, mental, and spiritual aspects interact to create who we are. That's a challenging but exciting task that impacts your job, your relationships, your life. It's a task you can start at LCC and continue for the rest of your life.

The liberal arts education I received studying International Relations and Development at LCC has helped me attain a broad knowledge of how the world works. In addition, the faith-based environment at LCC upholds important values such as honesty, fidelity, renunciation of violence, and unconditional love which have all motivated me to pursue excellence in my chosen career field. My academic experience prepared and empowered me to widen my horizons and deal with diversity and change well. I applied this knowledge while working in Brussels, Belgium in an international organization that promotes human dignity.

THEOLOGY

Our Theology program is built to engage you in thinking and acting on hard questions, concepts, and paths. This classical university discipline offers academic rigor in the knowledge of God, God's Word, and God's World, while contributing to the formation of Christian character, worldview, and service. This program touches on the ancient world through written texts, philosophy, culture and history in order to engage us to the modern world. These skills ultimately lead to a life of love and service, before you even enter the workforce.

Courses within this program include:

Introduction to Theology, Biblical Interpretation, Spiritual Formation, Introduction to Philosophy, Religions of the World, History of Christianity, Faith and Film, Peacemaking and Justice, Intercultural Communication, Apologetics, Systematic Theology, Christian Classics Reformation: Protestant and Catholic, Philosophy of Religion, Hebrew Prophets, General Epistles, The Book of Revelation.

“ACCEPTING OF ALL PEOPLE REGARDLESS OF THEIR RELIGION, COLOR OR NATIONAL- LITY”

While choosing a university I had three things in mind: diversity; acceptance for all people regardless of their religion, color or nationality; and affordability. The student testimonials videos on the website showed me that LCC had all that I was looking for. As a Theology major, I am enjoying the opportunity to learn about the Word of God, and how to present His teachings in more vivid ways. One thing I especially like is how students are encouraged to give their opinion freely. The teaching staff and faculty are always ready to help and encourage students in a positive direction. In the future, I want to pursue a career in Human Rights. I am glad LCC is helping me by laying a foundation of love, hope, courage and sound knowledge.

DUDENT

An education is an investment that comes with future rewards. Being a private university, LCC International University charges tuition, yet around 62% of our students receive some form of financial support, scholarships, stipends or grants. Each year LCC offers more than 417,000 EUR in Financial Aid to our students.

LCC FINANCIAL AID

We want to make it possible for you to attend LCC; therefore, each year we offer financial aid to students with strong academic records and demonstrated need within the limits of our resources.

NCIAL

WORK & STUDY PROGRAMS

Most LCC students find employment during the academic year and the summer to help pay for their education. LCC's Career Development Center assists students in finding employment both on and off-campus. The Center serves as a link between you and potential employers. Summer opportunities can also include work/travel experiences in the USA and Western Europe.

OTHER OPTIONS

Depending on your country of origin, there are other options for financing your studies. Please contact us for more information regarding your financial aid possibilities at LCC.

STUDENT LIFE: HOLISTIC APPROACH

Our Intercultural team activities present students with the opportunities to get involved in cultural nights, celebrating different countries represented at LCC, as well as join cultural trips around Lithuania. With the Spiritual Life team, we challenge students to grow in their faith through spiritual practices and service to local communities. Student Council, consisting of current LCC students, offers different clubs: sports, drama, yoga, journalism, and others. In Student Success Center students can find academic and social support through writing, math tutoring sessions, and through the immersive First Year Seminar that helps students to get acquainted with the university life. And finally, our Career Development Center provides career guidance and training in CV writing to help you succeed in the professional world.

BREAKING THE LIMITS SINCE 1995

LCC Moose is a student basketball team which proudly represents LCC in national and international leagues. They participate in tournaments in Estonia, the USA, China, and Italy, where they have played against NCAA teams. The basketball team includes players from Georgia, Greece, Belarus, Zambia, Lithuania, Serbia, Ukraine, and Russia.

“LEADERSHIP AS A CHARACTER- BUILDING EXPERIENCE”

I was a First Year Seminar leader, International Exchange leader and a Resident Assistant. These were the extra curriculum leadership positions I chose among many available at LCC, and I am glad I was a part of each one of them because I felt a desire to put myself and my skills into use and actively contribute to the community. Some very meaningful and long-lasting relationships started thanks to the leadership positions I have served in. Leadership is all about people so it only makes sense that people have been the central aspect of these experiences for me. Leadership has also been a wonderful character-building experience. I grew more self-confident; I do not shy away from making important decisions, especially when it concerns other people. I have been really empowered by the LCC Leadership Program and the whole institution at large, and I am going to be forever grateful for that.
