Employability

What our students have to say

Ashley Taylor
USA

BA in Politics and International Relations and MA in Peace and Development Studies

My favourite thing about UL is the support of the faculty for students. At UL, students are welcome to meet with professors during office hours and contact them for both academic and professional advice. Additionally, professors take an active interest in their students and are invested in helping students succeed during and after their time at university. It makes a huge difference as a student to have professors who encourage your success on a personal level, and it really makes UL stand out.

Sanjeev Kumar
India

MSc in International Management and Global Business

It would be really an understatement for UL if I just list one favourite thing. I loved everything about UL starting from the campus, location, staffs, classes, Stables, Post grad union sitting room, playing sports (indoor as well as outdoor), UL Arena everything. One of the best places to spend time other than classes was the postgrad SU. It was a fantastic space to get to know other postgraduate students.

Wong Zhi Xuan,
Malaysia

MA in Ethnomusicology

I am currently a PhD candidate at University of Malaya furthering my studies in Ethnomusicology and at the same time teach and perform music in Kuala Lumpur. The UL music faculty are experts in their own respective fields and have deep knowledge and experiences that has helped me to explore a world of musical knowledge. This programme has given me all the preparations needed to become an independent researcher.

Aliyu Usman,
Nigeria

MA in Human Rights in Criminal Justice

Upon completing my study at UL, I resumed work in Nigeria where I got promoted to Deputy Superintendent of Police (DSP) and transferred to the National Headquarters of the Nigeria Police Force. My interactions with experts in the field of human rights and criminal justice at UL and with Irish police officers have provided me with new avenues to network, share and learn beyond the completion of my course. This was made possible by the unique environment in the classroom, which encouraged networking and innovative exchange of different views and ideas.
